GUAN YI YANG XING

Mindful Wellness Tea Gathering

Questions and Answers

Be still · Savour tea · Nourish the mind · Cultivate the self

Q1 What is the Guan Yi Yang Xing Mindful Wellness Tea Gathering?

It is more than an occasion to drink tea. With a fine pot of tea and a quiet space, we invite participants to pause, set aside distractions and bring their attention back to their bodies and inner selves.

Here, aged tea is both a drink and a way to spend time with yourself. Sip attentively and notice your own experience: the warmth, aroma and lingering sweetness of the tea, and any feelings of warmth, ease, relaxation or other sensations in your body.

Q2 How is it different from an ordinary tea gathering?

Ordinary tea gatherings often focus on tea knowledge, brewing techniques and tasting. This gathering places greater emphasis on the connection between the person, the tea, the body and one's state of mind.

In a quiet setting, with careful brewing and guidance, participants are invited to notice more than the colour, aroma and taste. The experience encourages awareness of the subtle bodily sensations traditionally described as tea qi. Through quiet time with aged tea, the aim is to settle the mind and cultivate awareness. The traditional description also expresses the belief that this experience may support general well-being; it should not be understood as a medical claim.

Q3 Do I need to know anything about tea?

Not at all. Whether you are new to Chinese tea or have enjoyed it for years, you are welcome. We begin simply. There is no need to memorise tea facts or know elaborate tea etiquette; just come with an open and calm mind.

Q4 What tea is served?

We serve naturally dry stored, aged raw Pu'er tea that is at least 20 years old. For some private gatherings, teas from different years and growing regions can be arranged to suit the client's needs. Participants can explore their differences and layers through taste and personal experience.

Q5 Why does the brewing water matter?

We believe good tea deserves good water. The mineral composition, taste and condition of the water can change how a tea presents itself.

The gathering uses natural BRT glacial spring water sourced from an altitude above 4,700 metres. It contains minerals and trace elements including strontium, selenium, calcium and iron. Its clean, gently sweet taste is intended to bring out the character of the aged tea.

Q6 How long does a gathering last?

Depending on the theme, it usually lasts about 1.5 to 2 hours. We leave enough time to slow down, drink tea quietly, notice how you feel and share reflections at a comfortable pace.

Q7 How many people attend?

We focus on small gatherings by reservation so that each participant can enjoy the experience. Options include individual sessions, small private gatherings, corporate events, group experiences and tailored sessions. Larger events can be discussed according to the venue and theme.

Q8 Can I book a private gathering or reserve the whole venue?

Yes. We can tailor a gathering for birthdays, gatherings with friends, private tea conversations, business hospitality, corporate events, team experiences, cultural exchanges and VIP sessions. We will plan the tea setting and programme around the group size, timing and purpose.

Q9 Is it suitable for companies or organisations?

Yes. For teams working at a fast pace, a quiet tea experience offers a chance to step away from phones, meetings and daily routines, and talk in a more relaxed setting.

Topics can include mindful tea experiences, Chinese Pu'er tea culture, basic brewing, tea table etiquette, team interaction and themed gatherings.

Q10 Is this a religious activity?

No. It is a tea culture and lifestyle experience. "Mindfulness" here means slowing down, becoming quiet and paying closer attention to the present moment. We respect participants of all ethnic, cultural and religious backgrounds.

Q11 Does drinking tea have a medical or therapeutic effect?

This is a tea culture and lifestyle experience, not a medical service. It does not replace professional medical advice or treatment. People have different health conditions and may respond differently to tea. Please let us know in advance if you have a particular health concern. We encourage everyone to listen to their body and choose what suits them.

Q12 How should I prepare?

No special preparation is needed. We recommend comfortable, loose cotton tops and long trousers. Avoid attending immediately after a heavy meal or drinking alcohol. Before the session, please avoid pungent or strongly flavoured foods such as onion, ginger, garlic and curry, and avoid perfume.

At the tea table, we also encourage you to silence your phone and place it in the designated area, giving yourself and others uninterrupted time.

Q13 Can I buy the tea served at the gathering?

Some teas are available for purchase. However, our primary purpose is not to hold the gathering simply to sell tea. We hope you will first get to know naturally dry stored aged raw Pu'er through tea prepared by an experienced brewer, notice your own sensations and enjoy a quiet moment to slow down.

Q14 Can I bring older adults or children?

We hold parent and child sessions regularly; please watch for our event announcements. If an older participant uses a wheelchair, or if anyone has other accessibility needs, please tell us when booking.

Q15 How do I make a reservation?

Bookings are by reservation. WhatsApp us at 8058 3517 with your name, number of participants, preferred date and time, whether the booking is for an individual, private gathering or corporate event, and any special requirements. Our team will help arrange the session.

A cup of tea, a quiet moment of your own

In a busy life, give yourself time to slow down, become still and reconnect with your body.
